Presence

Our Exercises

Option A:

Uncover A World in Itself

“The moment one gives close attention to anything, even a blade of grass, it becomes a mysterious, awesome, indescribably magnificent world in itself.” ~Henry Miller

This exercise invites you to tap into Henry Miller’s magic. Simply do as Miller suggests:

Pick one place, object or animal and give it your attention and presence until it becomes a world unto itself.

Additionally, figure out your own way of recording the progression from a singular or simple object to an entire world. Maybe you keep a journal and write about something new you notice each time you return to it. Maybe take a new photo of it each time and look back at the photos to see what changes and emerges over time. Maybe just sit with your chosen focus for a whole day and see where it takes you.

Take your time as you chose your focus. Maybe it is a blade of grass or a singular flower. But then again maybe it’s that food truck outside your office at lunch time. Or the old toolbox your dad passed on to you whose story and world you’ve yet to discover.

As always, consider bringing a picture to your group. Seeing your uncovered world, they just might more easily see even more of their own.

Option B:

Make Your Presents About Presence

Your children need your presence more than your presents.” – Jesse Jackson“

It’s not just our children. We all need it. Who wants a new tie when they could have the gift of being seen? Yes, the grandkids want that check from Grandma, but what they will remember is you asking them to join them for a Saturday as you go through the boxes of old stuff in the attic and telling them the stories connected to that so-called junk. This exercise asks you to creatively engage this truth that Jackson lifts up:

Pick at least one person this year and make their holiday present about presence!

There are so many ways to come at this. Offer your presence by making the gift something you do together. Show them you are present to them and really see them by picking a gift that reflects something especially unique about them. Or help them be more present to life by giving them a gift that helps them stay focused on what’s important or that helps them step back from the blinding busyness of routine life.

As novelist Cecelia Ahern reminds us, “Sometimes, people can go missing right before our very eyes.” Ultimately, that’s what this exercise is about. Give a gift that helps you find those you love again and helps them find you.

Your Question

As always, don't treat these questions like "homework" or a list that needs to be covered in its entirety. Instead, simply pick the one question that speaks to you most and let it lead you where you need to go. The goal of these questions is not to help you analyze what Presence means in the abstract, but to figure out what being a part of a community of Presence means for you and your daily living. So, which question is calling to you? Which one contains "your work"?

1. Has the experience of "presence" increased or decreased for you as you've gotten older?
2. How might tomorrow be an opportunity to "discover presence"?
3. What absence walks with you more days than not?
4. Who has gone missing right before your very eyes? ("Sometimes, people can go missing right before our very eyes." -Cecelia Ahern)
5. Have you lost sight of yourself? (" Sometimes, we lose sight of ourselves when we're not paying enough attention." -Cecelia Ahern)
6. Would you be more present to your life if you weren't trying to perfect it or win at it? ("Allow your life to be a work in progress. Do not hurry to mold the masterpiece; Always there is more to be done. Life is always unfinished business." ~Richard S. Gilbert")
7. When was the last time you created a world in itself? ("The moment one gives close attention to anything, even a blade of grass, it becomes a mysterious, awesome, indescribably magnificent world in itself." ~Henry Miller)
8. Where is your chance tomorrow to love someone with your presence? ("At the end of the day: do others feel loved in your presence? This is the spiritual bottom line." – Masin Kipp; "Attention is the rarest and purest form of generosity" - Simone Weil)
9. Whose absence feels most present to you? What can you do tomorrow to feel and honor them more deeply? ("One of the best feelings in the world is knowing that your presence and absence both mean something to someone." -- anonymous)
10. Are you living like you deserve to take up space in the world? ("You deserve to take up space in the world." -Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie)
11. What's your question? Your question may not be listed above. As always, if the above questions don't include what life is asking from you, spend the month listening to your days to hear it.

Recommended Resources

As always, this is not required reading. We will not analyze or dissect these pieces in our group. They are simply meant to companion you on your journey this month, get your thinking started, and maybe open you to new ways of thinking about what it means to be a community of Presence.

Presence

Definition: The state or fact of existing, occurring, or being present in a place or thing.
Latin: in:proesentia; proe, before, and esse, to be.

Wise Words

“This is the first, the wildest and the wisest thing I know: that the soul exists and is built entirely out of attentiveness.” ~Mary Oliver

“The moment one gives close attention to anything, even a blade of grass, it becomes a mysterious, awesome, indescribably magnificent world in itself.” ~Henry Miller

“At the end of the day: do others feel loved in your presence? This is the spiritual bottom line.” ~Masin Kipp

Sometimes, people can go missing right before our very eyes. Sometimes, we lose sight of ourselves when we're not paying enough attention. ~Cecelia Ahern

"When you love someone, the best thing you can offer is your presence. How can you love if you are not there? The most precious gift we can offer others is our presence. When mindfulness embraces those we love, they will bloom like flowers." ~Thich Nhat Hanh

“Learn me slowly; be patient with my pages.” ~Pavana

“If your absence doesn't affect them, your presence never mattered” ~Anonymous

Oh, the comfort — the inexpressible comfort of feeling safe with a person — having neither to weigh thoughts nor measure words, but pouring them all right out, just as they are, chaff and grain together; certain that a faithful hand will take and sift them, keep what is worth keeping, and then with the breath of kindness blow the rest away. ~Dinah Maria Mulock Craik

“One of the best feelings in the world is knowing that your presence and absence both mean something to someone.” ~Anonymous

Presence is removing judgment, walls and masks so as to create a true and deep connection with people or experiences. ~Amy Cuddy

The ability to be fully aware of the present moment is also the ability to be “non-discriminating” between the experiences we like (because they are pleasant) and the experiences we don't like (because they are unpleasant). Awareness is non-discriminating because awareness does not want to get and does not want to reject, it just is aware, and accepting of everything that manifests. ~Chan Dao Lu

“Out of our busyness, we are called back into balance, back into ourselves and the silence of present being. But it is not just back into ourselves to which we are called; it is also the awareness of the continuous presence of the environment around us and within us. We are called to remember our relationships and our dependencies. We are called to once again feel the oneness which sustains our being in balance with creation, and to do so with wonder and appreciation.” ~Susan Manker-Seale

Life Is Always Unfinished Business

In the midst of the whirling day,
In the hectic rush to be doing,
In the frantic pace of life,

Pause here for a moment.
Catch your breath;
Relax your body;
Loosen your grip on life.
Consider that our lives are always unfinished business;
Imagine that the picture of our being is never complete;

Allow your life to be a work in progress.
Do not hurry to mold the masterpiece;
Do not rush to finish the picture;
Do not be impatient to complete the drawing.
From beckoning birth to dawning death we are in process,
And always there is more to be done.
Do not let the incompleteness weigh on your spirit;
Do not despair that imperfection marks your every day;
Do not fear that we are still in the making.
Let us instead be grateful that the world is still to be created;
Let us give thanks that we can be more than we are;
Let us celebrate the power of the incomplete;
For life is always unfinished business.
~Rev. Richard S. Gilbert

The Presence of Trees

Slowly, I am remembering the language of awe,
how to take in, say,
the living complexity of a tree
its gnarled trunk,
its ragged bark,
the way its leafy canopy filters sunlight down to the brown carpeted ground,
the way the wind bends my heart to the exquisite presence of trees the forest that calls to me as deeply as I breathe, as though the woods were marrow of my bone as though I myself were a tree, a breathing, reaching arc of the larger canopy beside a brook bubbling to foam like the one deep in these woods, that calls
that whispers home.
~Michael S. Glaser

Christmas Light

When everyone had gone
I sat in the library
With the small silent tree,
She and I alone.
How softly she shone!
And for the first time then
For the first time this year,
I felt reborn again,
I knew love's presence near.

Love distant, love detached
And strangely without weight,
Was with me in the night
When everyone had gone
And the garland of pure light Stayed on, stayed on.
~May Sarton

Perhaps the most characteristic element of Christmas is what we call the Christmas spirit, its joy, its reassessment of life as good. This persistent presence is difficult to explain, but no one questions its genuineness. ~Unknown

“It came without ribbons. It came without tags.
It came without packages, boxes or bags. And he puzzled and puzzled ’till his puzzler was sore.
Then the Grinch thought of something he hadn’t before. What if Christmas, he thought, doesn’t come from a store. What if Christmas, perhaps, means a little bit more.” ~Dr Seuss

Light is to darkness what love is to fear; in the presence of one the other disappears.
~Marianne Williamson

“Your children need your presence more than your presents.” ~Jesse Jackson

Realize deeply that the present moment is all you ever have.
What a liberation to realize that the “voice in my head” is not who I am.
Who am I then? The one who sees that.
Life is the dancer and you are the dance.
~Eckhart Tolle

If we open to the moment through our bodies, a whole new level of insight and wisdom can support us in ways our conscious mind cannot.
May we all open to a greater level of embodied presence. The great challenge in our busy world is to stay connected with ourselves— with our bodily felt experience, our living wisdom, our sensitivity and our depth. This intensive retreat addresses this challenge through helping you to develop greater presence in body, speech, and mind and to connect with yourself, your awareness, and your felt experience in a fully embodied way. ~John Welwood

“You deserve to take up space in the world.”
~Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie

The Last Quiet Places: Silence and the Presence of Everything - On Being Podcast

Silence is an endangered species, says Gordon Hempton. He defines real quiet as presence — not an absence of sound, but an absence of noise. The Earth, as he knows it, is a "solar-powered jukebox." Quiet is a "think tank of the soul."

In the Presence of Elephants and Whales - On Being Podcast

We were made and set here, the writer Annie Dillard once wrote, "to give voice to our astonishments." Katy Payne is a renowned acoustic biologist with a Quaker sensibility. And she's found her astonishment in listening to two of the world's most exotic creatures. She has decoded the language of elephants and was among the first scientists to discover that whales are composers of song.

Presents and Presence

The nicest gifts people have given me have been enabling, confirming gifts, bestowing understanding and self-esteem, help in time of trouble and delight for ordinary days. What struck me most was the connection between the gift and the giver of the gift and the sense of appreciation for that person in their lives at that time.

The Gift of Presence, The Perils of Advice

Parker Palmer: Many of us "helper" types are as much or more concerned with being seen as good helpers as we are with serving the soul-deep needs of the person who needs help. Witnessing and companioning take time and patience, which we often lack — especially when we're in the presence of suffering so painful we can barely stand to be there, as if we were in danger of catching a contagious disease. We want to apply our “fix,” then cut and run, figuring we’ve done the best we can to “save” the other person.

Silence: The Mystery of Wholeness by Robert Sardello

“Each of us has an ever faithful companion-presence. Something that is always with us. Something that helps us to live with inner integrity and depth, to see through the outer covering of others and of the world to their purpose and core being, and to get over placing ourselves at the center of everything. This companion-presence is Silence. It never goes away. We go away from it, become distracted and forgetful, and lose the manners needed to nurture companionship with it.”
